From the Rector

Dear Friends,

As we enter into June, we will have just celebrated the great festival of Pentecost on 31 May which celebrates the coming of the Holy Spirit. As we continue at home, albeit with some of the restrictions easing, we will start to enter into some kind of normality and routine in the coming months with places opening again.

However, whilst we are all eager to get back to complete normality, we will need to be patient and ask God for his spirit in greater measure, as it looks like social distancing will be with us for some time until we find a vaccine.

This is no different for Churches as we await further guidance from the national and diocesan church on how to open and operate in the near future, which is looking like the 4 July, but we will need especially one of the gifts of the Holy Spirit, that of patience, which will need to be applied.

In other news, the consultation is now open to help identify the next Bishop of Chelmsford. Below are details on how you can submit your views and may I encourage you to do so.

Help identify the next Bishop of Chelmsford- consultation now open

I'm pleased to say that this consultation is now open and will remain open until 4 July. On behalf of the Chelmsford Diocese Vacancy in See Committee, I am writing to invite you to:

Share your own views about our diocese and our next Bishop via https://chelmsdio.typeform.com/to/LMxWdl

God bless,

Reverend Steven

Gardening in June

June is an important time to keep weeds down to ensure plants have all the moisture and goodness from the soil and do not have to compete with weeds. Hoe regularly between rows of vegetables and in between plants in flower beds.

Keep up with watering pots and tubs; they really do need some every day, even if it's overcast and raining; rain really doesn't get into tubs and baskets.

Continue to mow lawns weekly but if the weather gets very dry raise your mower cut to reduce stress on grass.

If you have spring flowering shrubs it's now time to prune back; by a third is a good guide for pruning shrubs.

Tall plants like dahlias need staking.

If you have a greenhouse do not leave it empty through the summer; fill it with flowering plants and/or heat loving vegetables; there is nothing more beautiful than a well-filled and well-presented greenhouse, but they do need shading to keep them cool; this will save watering and prevent the plants scorching.

If you are growing tomatoes pinch out the side shoots; this is to encourage the plant to grow more tomatoes rather than more leaves. (This does not apply to some small tomato plants like 'Tumbling Tom'.)

Plant out courgettes and squashes if you haven't already.

Finally, time to start thinking about 2021; sow wallflower seeds and winter vegetables like purple sprouting broccoli etc in a nursery bed and plant out leeks for the winter.

Plant of the month – Climbing Roses

Plant of the month really has to be the rose this month. Shown here are English Roses bred by David Austin; these much-loved roses excel in both beauty and fragrance.

Shown here is my Gertrude Jekyll climbing rose. Always one of the first English Roses to start flowering, its flowers are a bright glowing pink. Its strong scent is often described as being the typical old rose fragrance from years ago. Try growing together with a blue clematis.

The other rose of mine shown here is 'Bathsheba'. The flowers are a beautiful blend of subtle apricot-pink and soft yellow, giving the overall impression of apricot, with creamy outer petals. The name was inspired by the heroine of Thomas Hardy's 'Far from the Madding Crowd'.

David Austen Climbing Roses are a delight; do try them in your garden; grown up a post, especially with a clematis growing amongst them will give height and colour to your garden.

These climbing roses are suitable for growing on a wall, over a doorway or an obelisk or post. If you have a climbing rose in your garden you will notice that at the moment, they are shooting out new shoots from the base; these are your next year's roses. If you have the patience try this: in the autumn cut down to the ground all the stems that have flowered this year, leaving only the new shoots that are growing now. Then, in the autumn, bend these new stems over and tie down horizontally for the winter. In the spring next year, you will notice that new shoots are sprouting all along the stem. This is the time to release the stem and tie the rose back vertically to the post. The rose will then flower and look amazing as they will flower right from the bottom of the post to the top, rather than just have roses at the top.

All is Fair in Love and War

Waiting in the queue to lay in those vital provisions from our shop may have given some readers the opportunity to take stock of the sounds in the centre of the village.

During April a Song Thrush was in full-throated voice. He (yes, it will have been the male) was prominent right at the top of the lime tree opposite the shop, before it came fully into leaf. His repetitive phrases are unmistakable, compared with the Blackbird's long legato lines. He then clearly had achieved his aim, had attracted a mate and perhaps together had decided there were adequate nesting sites and food supplies. There was no need for him to continue advertising their presence, possibly to predators.

His song post was then requisitioned by a Blackcap. The decibel rating was lower, but the song more musical and delicate. It was now early May, the unfolding leaves on the lime making him more dicult to see, but well worth pausing just to listen to that gentle warble.

A friend living close by has a phone app. which will play a whole variety of bird song. Certainly the Blackcap recording, played through a small wireless loudspeaker, was a worthy rival to our resident bird. What was not expected was the reaction of the real songster. I've mentioned one purpose of bird song – advertising for a mate. Now another aspect came into play. The Blackcap had heard a rival singing nearby. Emulating a wartime Juncker dive-bomber he launched an attack on the intruder, again and again swooping at the small inanimate green box on the bird table.

I was invited, suitably socially distanced, to observe this display – but, as is the way with bird watching, nothing is predictable. Our Blackcap had decided a small green box could safely be left to make its contribution to the dawn chorus, if it must, and resumed his own serenading from the top of the lime, taking no further notice of the contraption below.

God's Garden By Dorothy Frances Gurney

THE Lord God planted a garden
In the first white days of the world,
And He set there an angel warden
In a garment of light enfurled.

So near to the peace of Heaven,
That the hawk might nest with the wren,
For there in the cool of the even
God walked with the first of men.

And I dream that these garden closes
With their shade and their sun-flecked sod
And their lilies and bowers of roses,
Were laid by the hand of God.

The kiss of the sun for pardon,
The song of the birds for mirth, —
One is nearer God's heart in a garden
Than anywhere else on earth.

For He broke it for us in a garden
Under the olive-trees
Where the angel of strength was the warden
And the soul of the world found ease.

An English Country Garden

The fourth verse of this poem is very familiar and used on many plaques, bird baths and other sites in gardens throughout the country. It was first recorded in Lord Ronald Gower's visitor's book by Dorothy Frances Blomfield Gurney at his residence at Hammerfield, Penshurst. It is not known when Dorothy first composed it but it is possible that it was a spontaneous response to her visit to the beautiful garden. The poem appeared in print in Poems, by Dorothy Frances Gurney, published in London by Country Life, in 1913, one of two collections of her poems published during her lifetime.

The visit to such a garden was no doubt enjoyed by many of Dorothy's contemporaries as a feast of sights and scents, but the final verse referring to Dorothy was born in London in 1858, the eldest of the five daughters and one son of Revd Frederick George Blomfield, the rector of St Andrew's Undershaft, who in turn was the son of the Bishop of London.

Let your imagination wander.....open your inner eyes, listen to your memory store, tune in to the splash of paddling in the sea, the digging of the vegetable plot, the birdsong in the peace garden, the stirring sounds of the kitchen, the voices of friends in many languages, the calls of children and the cheerful welcoming of new faces. Yes, you are at Othona Bradwell – or maybe at Othona West Dorset. Now imagine you can choose a favourite week or weekend from the Othona programme – what is it to be? Star Gazing, music making, learning and discussing something new with an interesting speaker, beach fun, cooking....just take a look. Now imagine calling the Othona o ce, chatting with Tim, Debbie or Richard, sharing your room preferences and dietary requirement – hoping for a shared yurt and a vegan diet – or a single room and "I eat everything".....then your booking, your deposit, your commitment, your anticipation – the journey, the meeting, greeting, becoming one of the Othona Community again. Well, so much for your imagination – you are with us in spirit, if not just yet with us in person. Even so, you are still a member, friend or local to the Othona Community.

We are really sorry that you cannot come here at the moment; the resident Community of 10 are safely Locked Down to protect themselves and yourselves from spreading that ghastly virus. Othona is using the government's furlough system to keep the paid sta on site while we have no visitor income. You know, your payment as visitors, guests, community members is absolutely vital to the running of our Centres. We still have outgoings for sta payment, food bills, basic maintenance, fuel, insurances, IT costs, Projects for greener, more inclusive and sustainable Centressorry to bother you about this but if you were intending to stay or visit Othona this summer we would be most grateful for your donation in lieu of payment for booking if you can a ord something. You are still most welcome to join in all the activities we can possibly think of on line. About 70 people joined the Othona Bradwell quiz night on VE Day – and a similar number "attended" a concert via Othona West Dorset. Keep an eye on the Othona's Web Pages and link in to Facebook (you don't have to be a Facebook user) or go direct through Facebook.

The Othona Bradwell site, like the Othona Dorset site, has had to temporarily close its doors for the safety and health of us all. But Othona's heart is still open.

Do share in Community through letters, videos and updates on the website and other media. And be with us in spirit and in prayer whenever you seek the friendship of Othona, and particularly at 9p.m. on a Thursday evening when our founder, Norman Motley, established the Dedication Service in the Chapel to pray for Othona, and those who are there or in our thoughts. You are welcome to write, email or telephone for updates or just to share time with those who are staying on at Othona to keep things ticking over in preparation for our reawakening.

Tim Fox is our Warden/Manager, with Debbie and Richard Sanders. Full details of Programme and Charges can be found on our Website www.othonaessex.org.uk or ring Othona at Bradwell (it's down East End Rd and through East Hall Farm) on 01621 776564, limited response at present due to staff being on furlough. When we re-open you will find Free Parking for all visitors to Othona – just ask for an exit token to leave through our wind-powered gate. Until then stay safe, stay well, we look forward to seeing you again soon.

Wensleyhouse news

Daphne's big sister Cherry-Blossom has been behaving VERY oddly of late. Here's Daphne's version of events:

First my big sister went away on her own. She looked into our Wensleyhouse, and then into the clubhouse. I had a peep in there after Cherry-Blossom and would you believe it, it's full of straw on the floor and really looks quite comfortable. Anyway, Cherry-Blossom decided to go and sit under her cherry tree for a bit, but she was really fidgety and couldn't keep still. I found it quite dicult to go to sleep until I thought of sitting next to our Aunty Ethel. That was a good idea! She is big and warm and comfortable. Dorothea joined me and all 3 of us got some sleep in the end. When I woke up I realised that Cherry-Blossom wasn't there and there was a strange bleating noise coming from the Wensleyhouse! It was very dark, and a small shadow came out of the Wensleyhouse which Cherry-Blossom kept licking. Our shepherd came then and there was a bit of confusion with a bright light and talking. But we were given ewe nuts which was such a midnight treat!

Then, for the next couple of days we didn't see much of my big sister. She was kept inside our enclosure and we were allowed to run around the big field. It was really good having Aunty Ethel with us. I always feel safe when she's around. Once I got left behind - I was choosing flowers to go behind my ears (well, that's what my shepherd said it looked like I was doing), and I couldn't find Aunty Ethel. I was really very worried for a bit, then I saw her right at the other end of the field. I ran! Aunty Ethel looked surprised to see us running towards her (you see Dorothea was with me by then), but she said afterwards, when we were going to sleep under the cherry tree that night, that she'd been pleased to see us really.

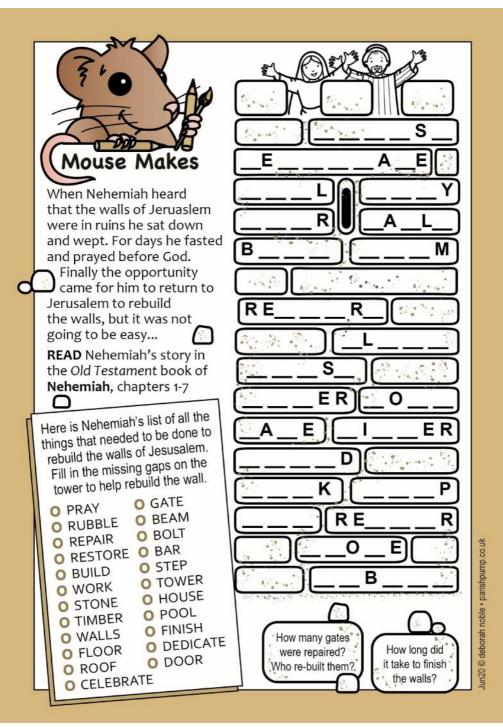

Do you know what, that dark shadow which Cherry-Blossom was licking on that first night, you'll never guess, she looks just like us only very much smaller. She smells like us too and is really quite fun. She made me jump at first, when I saw her moving around, but we have made secret best friends now. It's secret because Cherry-Blossom doesn't really like me talking to her. When I do sneak up to her for a chat and Cherry-Blossom sees, she pushes me across the field by putting her head in my tummy and shoving! She can really be very fierce can my Big Sister. I think she forgets it's only me.

story, when Cherry-Blossom and little Rosemary Ester, (that's her name and I like that, it sounds rather grand for such a little thing) were allowed to join us I knew just where to take them that Rosemary Ester would like best of all! You see, she's been trying (I'm not sure why) to jump onto an old bale of hay left in the field. This was rather careless of our shepherd because the bailing twine wasn't cut and we couldn't eat it. We did try to kick some of it out, but now the grass is green we don't need hay so much anyway. So I knew that Rosemary Ester liked to climb onto things and I took them straight o to just the place they would like. Cherry-Blossom quite liked it too; I think she thought I was a bit clever to find such a place. Sadly, we weren't allowed to stay there long, our shepherd came, and didn't look very pleased so I hopped down quickly. Cherry-Blossom wasn't quite so quick, so she didn't get so many of the ewe nuts we were given when we got back into our enclosure. We weren't allowed out again that morning, which seemed very unfair. And her shepherd's version of events "On the top of a 3ft pile of wood chips is NOT a good place for sheep to play 'Who's the queen of the castle'! I know it's not the first time, and it probably won't be the last, when one little sister leads a big sister astray - or even dare I say it, vice versa!

It can be read in the Bible in 1 Samuel 17:1-50

A short story from the Bible

The Philistine and Israelite armies faced each other. For 40 days, the gigantic Philistine champion, Goliath, taunted them.

David's brothers were in Israel's army. He came to bring them food, and he heard Goliath

David's brothers were not happy. You just came to watch the fight. Go back to your few sheep.

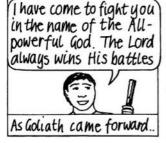

He is insulting God!
