ABANDONED CAR TURNS OUT TO BE STOLEN

BOCKING END

Braintree District Council Streetscene Officers (BDCSO) were first on the scene responding to reports of an abandoned vehicle.

When things didn't quite add up, they carried out a VIN check-that's the Vehicle Identification Number - which is usually displayed in the windscreen and much harder to tamper with than number plates. The VIN confirmed the vehicle was stolen and the number plates were false.

The BDCSO's called the Braintree Neighbourhood Police Team (NPT) who attended, recovered the vehicle and began further investigations..

Essex Police say " This is an example of effective partnership working between local council and Police - sharing information, acting quickly and keeping our streets safer.

By combining local knowledge and Policing powers we're able to respond swiftly and thoroughly to suspicious activity.

If you spot something that's doesn't look right, please report it.

Your information helps us to take action"
