Information for teachers

Your student is working on a Saturday in a clothing store. You are playing the role of a Chinese visitor who would like some information on the items. Ask questions to elicit:

- store opening hours
- what kind of things the shop sells
- details of their colours and prices
- methods of payment
- alternative methods of shopping

You will begin the conversation.

The list below is for suggestion only. It is intended to be neither prescriptive nor exhaustive. Teachers are expected to ask questions which will lead to genuine conversations with the students. Ask appropriate questions to keep the flow of conversation natural. Any "Yes / No" answers or brief answers should be followed up by further questions (e.g. Why? How?) to elicit more details. Students should also be encouraged to take initiative in the conversations, and voice their opinions as far as possible.

(H) indicates questions that are generally suitable for grades C-A*.
